

images for Good is doing amazing things for others at the grassroots level, with impact in and through Students and Veterans.
We are changing our community - and the world - one event, one Student, one photograph at a time.

images for Good

images for Good (ifG) supported the 300+ Students, Parents, and Faculty participating in an elementary school's STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, and Math) activity night. We were there to capture special images of this evening to share with participants, sponsors, and the community to help them promote awareness and greater participation in these important areas.

These Students are reviewing, selecting, and sharing images that THEY created at the event. To date, everything we have done (supporting over 40 other nonprofit programs with 100+ engagements) has been with secondhand equipment that we cobbled together from our very limited means. Laptops are essential – we need them to deliver images and provide training onsite. “Fun fact” on this particular device (our only laptop): the number keys don't work.

But we do what we can with what we do have (Passion, Purpose, and Plan to build on what we've done)!

We use Photography as a tool for change

Unleashing potential within Students, Veterans, and Service Programs...using cameras and commitment to benefit our community.

- Serving others
- Empowering Students & Veterans
- Creating new Partnerships

What can you do to help us market (and resource) these efforts?

These Students each contribute unique perspectives and experience levels – one of them is now serving as a photography mentor (sharing all that he has learned over 4 months from ifG adult mentors) and the other two are ifG's newest Students (who volunteered with us after seeing ifG cover a Dinner for Syria fundraising event).

Each of these Students brings to the table unique experiences and perspectives that desperately need to be shared with all of us, drawing from the rich and diverse offerings of Yemen, Syria, and the United States.

New partnerships and new points of view matter. Together, we can do more.
